King Expected to Sign Measure—Constabulary Hurried to Ulster District

LONDON, May 25 .- The House of Commons this afternoon passed for the third time the Irish Home Rule bill. Under the present law it becomes effective even if the House of Lords rejects it.

LONDON, May 25.-The vote was 351 to 274. The division was strictly political. It was practically the same as when it passed the second reading.

The quick vote was a surprise, almost a sensation. Crowds fllocked to Westminster expecting a red hot de-bate and a violent anti-home rule demonstration. The people stood openmouthed in the streets when they were told that the bill had been passed almost before they realized it was up for consideration.

John L. Billard, aged 70, a mysterious millionaire, was called to the witness stand in the Interstate Commerce Commission investigation of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railway in Washington the other day. He told little about himself.

In 1907 the New Haven held 109,948 shares of the Boston and Maine Railroad. A Massachusetts court declared the New Haven had no legal right to hold this stock. Thereupon Mr. Billard of Meriden, Conn., a harmless coal dealer, organized the Billard Company. He wrote to President Mellen of the New Haven he would give $120 a share for the Boston and Maine stock. Mr. Mellen phoned to him he would sell at $125. The deal was closed. Mr. Billard gave a note, and then, with the stock as collaterial, raised some $11,000,000 to pay the balance. Later he sold the stock to the Boston Railroad Holding Company for $150 a share. The holding company afterward sold the stock back to the New Haven. Mr. Billard had made a profit of $2,743,000. He swore that no officer of the New Haven shared in a cent of this. Asked for the books of the Billard Company, he said he didn't know where they were. Asked for his personal books, he said he had burned them.

HAND-TO-HAND FIGHTING

The popular impression of Latin American revolutions has been that they were comic-opera, much like French duels. The armies moved up in sight of each other, fired a few shots, performed their evolutions, and the stage play was over.

The Mexican fighting, seen in the capture of Tampico and the previous taking of Torreon, has been real war. Although unscientific, it has had a brutality and bloodiness like the days of the sword and the spear.

The war correspondents say scientific war has been growing less deadly. To be sure arms and ammunition are far more effective and frightful. But the soldiers know how to protect themselves. No longer do they stand up in rows of close formation, a sure mark for the foe, as indicated in the pictures of all the older battles.

Instead they are trained to hug the ground, dodging from rock to tree, seeking every inch of shelter. In the Russo-Japanese war many traditional conceptions were destroyed. The general was no longer a personal leader at the head of his troops, or survey the whole conflict from some hill.

His army was distributed in detachments covering as much as forty miles in some cases. The various battalions were connected by telephone with the general's office at some central point. Orders were dictated in this office to stenographers. The romance of personal daring was gone, but the whole vast formation moved with the efficiency of a machine.

The fighting in Mexico seems like a reversion to primitive war. Villa, leading his troops personally at Torreon, or the hand to hand fighting in the plazas of Tampico, reminds us of Richard Coeur de Lion personally swinging his battle axe on the heads of the Saracens at Acre, way back in the twelfth century.

Now there can't be much question about the real value of this land being more than $125.00 per acre and going considerably higher, land that is just about as level as a floor, easily worked and is now in crop, part of it with an estimated 20 sack crop of barley, part of it with a fine crop of sugar beets estimated at 20 tons, part of it in alfalfa, water stocked and only 11/4 miles from good little town with good schools, churches and modern conveniences, really a delightful home community. I don't know where you can equal it on this class of farming land. I will be glad to tell you about it. If you can't reach me by phone just drop me a line by mail, give your address and phone number. Last night, Dean Walter Williams, of the Missouri University School of Journalism, stood on the platform of the University audiorium in Columbia and said: "My friends, let me introduce to you Col. W. R. Nelson, publisher of the Kansas City Star, who will talk to you on The Mission of the Reporter. Ladies and gentlemen, Mr. Nelson

The 2,000 people in the hall looked with eager anticipation at the platform. Dean Williams stood there alone. Just in front of him an eight-inch plank about five feet high had been erected. Near the top of this plank a black steel horn thrust its bell muzzle forward from the wood to face the "Ladies and gentlemen, Mr. Nelson," repeated the dean with greater faith, and to the telephone operator in an ante-room, in a raised voice: "Turn on Col. Nel-son," at which everyone tittered nervously.

A man in the doorway of an ante-room spoke into the receiver of the phone he held in his hand. "Start your man, Mort," he said. Then there came the sound of a click from the board under the steel horn. And the voice of Col. Nelson came over the copper wires 175 miles on its way from Kansas City to Columbia, to thrill with its distinctness that expectant audience.

Just another triumph of science and skill and calculation and pains, taking care over distance and the resistance of the earth and sky against the frail human voice.

Col. Nelson sat in his study at his home in Kansas City and delivered a speech of 1,000 words to the two thousand people in the auditorium almost as clearly and distinctly as if he had been present on the platform in the flesh.

The audience leaned forward in the seats looking fixedly at that steel horn out of which came live thrilling words. It was just as wonderful and miraculous as when Lazarus came out of the tomb and spoke to the people gathered there that day in the hot sunshine at Palestine two thousand years Mendez, archbishop of Toledo, Spain Monsignor Domenico Serafini, Assessore of the Holy Inquisition, Rome. Benedictines. Although the consistory this morning failed to attract the attention of that of November, 1911, in which 18 cardinals were created, an importance nevertheless attached to it that may have the most vital effects on the future conduct of the Catholic church. This importance lies in the number of foreign cardinals contained in the list as compared with the Italian ones. Until the consistory of 1911, the Popes had for centuries past never failed to maintain in the Sacred College a majority of Italians sufficiently large to insure always the election of an Italian Pope. radical departure from this was made by Pope Pius in 1911 when the majority was reduced to anything but a safe one, from the Italian point of view. Although a vigorous protest was at once made to His Holiness by a goodly party of the Italian prelates, who pointed out to him the many dangers which they believe the possible election of a foreign Pope might entail, they apparently failed to swerve him from the purpose he had in mind—if purpose he had—when he began the reducing of the Italian ma-

Before the holding of the consistory this morning, the membership of the Sacred College had been reduced by recent deaths to 53. Of these 29 were District Court of Appeal, Second Dist. Italians and 24 were foreigners. With the creation this morning of only five new Italian cardinals against eight foreign ones, the membership of the Sacred College is now composed of 34 Italians and 32 foreigners.

Of the former, several such as Cardinal Di Pietro, who is 86 years of age and has been bed-ridden for years, are unable because of physical infirmities to attend a conclave for the election of a new Pope, and so the Sacred College for the first time in centuries can now be regarded as at least evenly balanced. The persistence of Pope Pius in the policy that has resulted in this is generally interpreted in Vatican circles as meaning that he at least is of the opinion that a Pope, other than an Italian, might be beneficial to the church at the present time.

The popular impression of Latin-American revolutions has been that they were comic-opera, much like French duels. The armies moved up in sight of each other, fired a few shots, performed their evolutions, and the stage play was over.

The Mexican fighting, seen in the capture of Tampico and the previous taking of Torreon, has been real war. Although unscientific, it has had a brutality and bloodiness like the days of the sword and the spear.

The war correspondents say scientific war has been growing less deadly. To be sure arms and ammunition are far more effective and frightful. But the soldiers know how to protect themselves. No longer do they stand up in rows of close formation, a sure mark for the foe as indicated in the pictures of all the older battles.

Instead they are trained to hug the ground, dodging from rock to tree. seeking every inch of shelter. In the Russo-Japanese war many traditional conceptions were destroyed. The general was no longer a personal leader at the head of his troops, or survey the whole conflict from some hill.

His army was distributed in detachments covering as much as forty miles in some cases. The various battalions were connected by telephone with the general's office at some central point. Orders were dictated in this office to stenographers. The romance of personal daring was gone, but the whole vast formation moved with the efficiency of a machine.

The fighting in Mexico seems like a reversion to primitive war. Villa, leading his troops personally at Torreon, or the hand to hand fighting in the plazas of Tampico, reminds us of Richard Coeur de Lion personally swinging his battle axe on the heads of the Saracens at Acre, way back in the twelfth century.

I don't know where you can equal it on this class of farming land. I will be glad to tell you about it. If you can't reach me by phone just drop me a line by mail, give your address and phone number. Last night, Dean Walter Williams, of the Missouri University School of Journalism, stood on the platform of the University auditorium in Columbia and said: "My friends, let me introduce to you Col. The 2,000 people in the hall looked with eager anticipation at the platform. Dean Williams stood there alone. Just in front of him an eight-inch plank about five feet high had been erected. Near the top of this plank a black steel horn thrust its bell muzzle forward from the wood to face the

A man in the doorway of an ante-room spoke into the receiver of the phone he held in his hand. "Start your man, Mort," he said. Then there came the sound of a click from the board under the steel horn. And the voice of Col. Nelson came over the copper wires 175 miles on its way from Kansas City to Columbia, to thrill with its distinctness that expectant audience.

Just another triumph of science and skill and calculation and pains, taking care over distance and the resistance of the earth and sky against the frail human voice.

Col. Nelson sat in his study at his home in Kansas City and delivered a speech of 1,000 words to the two thousand people in the auditorium almost as clearly and distinctly as if he had been present on the platform in the flesh.

The audience leaned forward in the seats looking fixedly at that steel horn out of which came live thrilling words. It was just as wonderful and miraculous as when Lazarus came out of the tomb and spoke to the people gathered there that day in the hot sunshine at Palestine two thousand years

The presence of four American cardinals, to permit of whose attendance Pope Pius had postponed the consistory this morning was secret, being participated in only by the pope and the members of the Sacred College. Following the formal opening, each cardinal in turn, beginning with the dean, Cardinal Serafini Vannutelli, was called to the foot of the papal throne. There Pope Pius whispered to each the names of the 13 prelates whom he had decided to raise to the purple. To these nominations, each

Although the consistory this morning failed to attract the attention of that of November, 1911, in which 18 cardinals were created, an importance nevertheless attached to it that may have the most vital effects on the fu-ture conduct of the Catholic church. This importance lies in the number of foreign cardinals contained in the list as compared with the Italian Until the consistory of 1911, the Popes had for centuries past never failed to maintain in the Sacred College a majority of Italians sufficiently large to insure always the election of an Italian Pope. radical departure from this was made by Pope Pius in 1911 when the majority was reduced to anything but a safe one, from the Italian point of view. Although a vigorous protest was at once made to His Holiness by a goodly party of the Italian prelates, who pointed out to him the many dangers which they believe the possible election of a foreign Pope might entail, they apparently failed to swerve him from the purpose he had in mind-if purpose he had-when he began the reducing of the Italian ma-

Before the holding of the consistory this morning, the membership of the Judge. Sacred College had been reduced by Italians and 24 were foreigners. With the creation this morning of only five new Italian cardinals against eight foreign ones, the membership of the Sacred College is now composed of 34 Italians and 32 foreigners.

Of the former, several such as Cardinal Di Pietro, who is 86 years of age and has been bed-ridden for years, are unable because of physical infirmities to attend a conclave for the election of a new Pope, and so the Sacred College for the first time in centuries can now be regarded as at least evenly balanced. The persistence of Pope Pius in the policy that has resulted in this is generally interpreted in Vatican circles as meaning that he at least is of the opinion that a Pope, other than an Italian, might be beneficial to the church at the present time.

Locating Mineral by "F" Rays

A Florentine inventor, Ing. Ulivi, according to Conploding deposits of powder without contact by the so-called "F" rays.

Ulivi has discovered that the various metals encountered by the rays each has a distinctive tone on the resonators, which tone varies in accordance with the character, volume, and density of the body of metal encountered. The inventor believes that an apparatus of the type now used by him, perfected with a view to accurately classifying different metals and their volumes, could be employed with certainty in the exploration of mineral lands and in locating

Telephone Must Interchange

A decision that is far-reaching has just been handed down bp Judge Bean of the United States District Court in Portland, Ore., Judges Gilbert and Wolverton concurring, under which the Railroad Commission can compel interchange of telephone service between competing telephone companies in all cases where application therefor was made. The Oregon Rairoad Commission had issued an order to compel the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company to interchange service with the Home Telephone in two hotels in Portland, The Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company contested the order on the ground that it involved the taking of property without due process of law and that it violated the Interstate Commerce clause of the Constitution of the United States. In its decision the court holds their contentions not to be sustained.

Law Making Program

That Congress will not adjourn until July is the conclusion of leaders in the Lower House. This is manifest by the adminstrative program outlined for legislation before adjournment. This program contemplates:

Trust legislation, including the trade commission bill, the Clayton general trust bill and the stocks and bonds regulatory bill.

Farm credits bill extending to agriculturists more liberal terms for borrowing money on farm lands and farm products than is possible to farmers under the general banking laws

Appropriation bills carrying money for the needs of the Government for the fiscal year, beginning This means that the session may be prolonged until late in the summer.

Sues Power Company

The San Joaquin Light and Power Company of Fresno has been sued by Tulare County for an accurate accounting of gross revenues for the three years ending November 10, 1913. The complaint states that by the terms of the corporation franchise the county is entitled to 2 per cent of the earnings arising from operation and possession of the franchise.

Citrus Fruit Industry

Seventy per cent of the total citrus fruit production in the United States comes from California, while one-fifth of the entire citrus crop of the world comes from the Golden State. The industry has an acreage in the State of 191,357 acres; $200,000,000 is invested in the industry; there are 10,000 growers, 20,000 laborers are employed in the orchards, and 150,000 persons are dependent upon the industry, while the yearly crop is valued at $35,000,000.

Insurance Men in Convention

Fire insurance agents in California in convention in San Bernardino elected these officers: W. G. Thompson of Napa, president; Noah Adair, San Bernardino, first vice president; N. G. Callaghan, Livermore, second vice president; Mac O. Robins, Santa Ana, third vice president; C. Fred Burks, secretary, and Leo R. Well, treasurer, both of Oakland.

Plans for the establishment of a bank in the new town of Nileland in the Imperial Valley with a capital of $50,000, are near completion.

Rights of Labor

Commenting on the strike in Colorado, which has sul L. J. Keena, at Florence, has succeeded in ex- proven to be a very serious conflict, and of the right to labor, the New York Financial Chronicle says:

"The right to belong to a labor union has never been disputed anywhere. The right to strike has never been disputed, for it is a natural right. The right to force other men to join a union is disputed. The right to work is as natural and inalienable as the right to quit work; it is this right which unionism assails. This present struggle in Colorado mining is a halfyear old; it began, and it continues, in the familiar attempt of unionism to force labor into the unions and to prevent others from taking the places of strikers. This is the Alpha and Omega of it: the undertaking of organized labor to control all labor and to compel the closed shop. Other alleged grievances are either without foundation in fact or are insignificant and transient (being easy to arrange amicably) in contrast with the determination of agitators to foment strikes and then make strikes impregnable by force. War is justifiable, and brings compensation for its cost only when it does some-thing to advance justice and human rights. As Mr. Rockefeller declared, several weeks ago, a genuine principle of liberty is at stake in Colorado. It is the same principle of liberty against the irresponsible control of a privileged class which has been assailed and has been weakly surrendered to a mere temporizing policy so often and in so many places. The battle for this principle is yet to be fought and won, and there can be no peace until it is. To establish the supremacy of law and the right to individual labor, it will be worth the cost.'

Oil Bradstreet Just Issued

The Oil Bradstreet, volume six, number one, the official oil book of California, was issued this week. The publishers believe that it is the best edition yet printed. Only the companies who have paid their taxes to the State, and therefore are the only ones entitled to transact business in the State, are included in its pages. There is no segregating of companies into active and inactive lists as has been done heretofore, the presumption being that every company which has paid the taxes assessed against them by the State is a live corporation, although some of the companies mentioned in the edition may not be actually drilling for ore or working in the development of their properties. A new feature of the edition is maps in outline, showing the various oil fields of the State: the names of field superintendents are given wherever it has been possible to obtain them. Tables are also given showing the oil output of the several oil-producing States amount of fuming acid, but does include by-product from the discovery of petroleum in 1859 down to acid—that is, acid obtained in the smelter industry. and including the year 1913. Every person interested in oil should have a copy of the Oil Bradstreet. It will be sent to any address by the publishers of The Financial News on receipt of 50 cents. #### Greatest High-Grade Oil Field

The Cushing oil field in Oklahoma, which six months ago was thought to have petered out and which embraces 30,000 acres of land, is now the greatest high-grade oil field in the world. The Oil City Derrick, speaking of this wonderful oil pool,

"Cushing is today the greatest high-grade oil field in the world. Six months ago it was considered a dead one. Through the discovery of the prolific Bartlesville sand it has come back with a vengeance. If there were pipe line and storage facilities to care for all the oil that could be produced by turning loose the wells that are already completed the production of the pool could be increased in a week's time from 70,000 barrels, its present capacity, to 100,000 barrels, and in less than ninety days to 200, 000 barrels a day. The world will probably never see its like again."

Railroad Must Pay Tax

The application of the San Diego and Eastern Railway for a writ of mandamus to compel the State Board of Equalization to assess its property as "operative" was denied without prejudice by the State Supreme Court. The board refused to tax the railway on the basis of 41/2 per cent on its gross earnings, as other railroads, but ordered the property taxed by the San Diego County Assessor. The result of the Supreme Court's decision will force the San Diego and Eastern to pay a tax of several thousand dollars to San Diego County. If the writ had been issued the railway's total tax would have been less than $100 and the State would have been obliged to reimburse San Diego County for the halance between the two sums.

To Consolidate Governments

City and County authorities of San Francisco and city authorities of Los Angeles held a conference in San Francisco this week to consider the draft of a proposed constitutional amendment providing for city and county consolidation. This amendment has been prepared to meet the desires of each of the three cities vitally interested in its adoption at the next general State election, and if approved by cities named initiative petitions will be placed in circulation at once to get the proposition on the ballot at the State election in November, and with the united support of the three cities there is little doubt but what the amendment will be adopted.

Inheritance Tax Decision

Two and a half years before he died, Anson P. Stephens, a capitalist of Coronado, conveyed to his wife $50,000. After his death the State Controller sought to impose the inheritance tax on the estate. declaring that the transfer was in contemplation of death. The question was appealed to the courts, and Judge Sloan in San Diego decided against the State. The court held that while Stephens might have contemplated the end, he was hale and hearty at the time of the transfer, and therefore the transfer was not made in contemplation of immediate death.

conclusion of leaders in the Lower House. This is manifest by the adminstrative program outlined for legislation before adjournment. This program con-

Trust legislation, including the trade commission bill, the Clayton general trust bill and the stocks and bonds regulatory bill.

Farm credits bill extending to agriculturists more liberal terms for borrowing money on farm lands and farm products than is possible to farmers under the general banking laws.

Sues Power Company

The San Joaquin Light and Power Company of Fresno has been sued by Tulare County for an accurate accounting of gross revenues for the three years ending November 10, 1913. The complaint states that by the terms of the corporation franchise the county is entitled to 2 per cent of the earnings arising from operation and possession of the franchise.

Citrus Fruit Industry

Seventy per cent of the total citrus fruit production in the United States comes from California, while one-fifth of the entire citrus crop of the world comes from the Golden State. The industry has an acreage in the State of 191,357 acres; $200,000,000 is invested in the industry; there are 10,000 growers, 20,000 laborers are employed in the orchards, and 150,000 persons are dependent upon the industry, while the yearly crop is valued at $35,000,000.

Insurance Men in Convention Fire insurance agents in California in convention in San Bernardino elected these officers: W. G. Thompson of Napa, president; Noah Adair, San Bernardino, first vice president; N. G. Callaghan, Livermore, second vice president; Mac O. Robins, Santa Ana, third vice president; C. Fred Burks, secretary, and Leo R. Well, treasurer, both of Oakland.

Smelter Earnings from Mexico

In the year 1912 earnings of the American Smelting and Refining Company from Mexican mines were $4,500,000. Last year this income dropped to $1,500,-000. Now all operations of the smelting company in Mexico are closed down.

Bank at Nileland

Plans for the establishment of a bank in the new town of Nileland in the Imperial Valley with a capital of $50,000, are near completion.

Rights of Labor

Commenting on the strike in Colorado, which has sul L. J. Keena, at Florence, has succeeded in ex- proven to be a very serious conflict, and of the right to labor, the New York Financial Chronicle says:

"The right to belong to a labor union has never been disputed anywhere. The right to strike has never been disputed, for it is a natural right. The right to force other men to join a union is disputed. The right to work is as natural and inalienable as the right to quit work; it is this right which unionism assails. This present struggle in Colorado mining is a half-year old; it began, and it continues, in the familiar attempt of unionism to force labor into the unions and to prevent others from taking the places of strikers. This is the Alpha and Omega of it: the undertaking of organized labor to control all labor and to compel the closed shop. Other alleged griev-ances are either without foundation in fact or are insignificant and transient (being easy to arrange amicably) in contrast with the determination of agi-tators to foment strikes and then make strikes impregnable by force. War is justifiable, and brings compensation for its cost only when it does some-thing to advance justice and human rights. As Mr. Rockefeller declared, several weeks ago, a genuine principle of liberty is at stake in Colorado. It is the same principle of liberty against the irresponsible control of a privileged class which has been assailed and has been weakly surrendered to a mere temporizing policy so often and in so many places. The battle for this principle is yet to be fought and won, and there can be no peace until it is. To establish the supremacy of law and the right to individual labor, it will be worth the cost."

Oil Bradstreet Just Issued

The Oil Bradstreet, volume six, number one, the official oil book of California, was issued this week. The publishers believe that it is the best edition yet printed. Only the companies who have paid their taxes to the State, and therefore are the only ones entitled to transact business in the State, are included in its pages. There is no segregating of comnanies into active and inactive lists as has been done heretofore, the presumption being that every company which has paid the taxes assessed against them by the State is a live corporation, although some of the companies mentioned in the edition may not be actually drilling for ore or working in the development of their properties. A new feature of the edition is maps in outline, showing the various oil fields of the State; the names of field superintendents are given wherever it has been possible to obtain them. Tables are also given showing the oil output of the several oil-producing States from the discovery of petroleum in 1859 down to and including the year 1913. Every person interested in oil should have a copy of the Oil Bradstreet. It will be sent to any address by the publishers of The Financial News on receipt of 50 cents. Greatest High-Grade Oil Field

The Cushing oil field in Oklahoma, which six months ago was thought to have petered out and which embraces 30,000 acres of land, is now the greatest high-grade oil field in the world. The Oil City Derrick, speaking of this wonderful oil pool,

"Cushing is today the greatest high-grade oil field in the world. Six months ago it was considered dead one. Through the discovery of the prolific Bartlesville sand it has come back with a vengeance. If there were pipe line and storage facilities to care for all the oil that could be produced by turning loose the wells that are already completed the production of the pool could be increased in a week's time from 70,000 barrels, its present capacity, to 100,000 barrels, and in less than ninety days to 200,-000 barrels a day. The world will probably never see its like again."

Railroad Must Pay Tax
The application of the San Diego and Eastern Railway for a writ of mandamus to compel the State Board of Equalization to assess its property as "operative" was denied without prejudice by the State Supreme Court. The board refused to tax the railway on the basis of 41/2 per cent on its gross earnings, as other railroads, but ordered the property taxed by the San Diego County Assessor. The result of the Supreme Court's decision will force the San Diego and Eastern to pay a tax of several thousand dollars to San Diego County. If the writ had been issued the railway's total tax would have been less than $100 and the State would have been obliged to reimburse San Diego County for the balance between the two sums.

To Consolidate Governments

City and County authorities of San Francisco and city authorities of Los Angeles held a conference in San Francisco this week to consider the draft of a proposed constitutional amendment providing for city and county consolidation. This amendment has been prepared to meet the desires of each of the three cities vitally interested in its adoption at the next general State election, and if approved by cities named initiative petitions will be placed in circulation at once to get the proposition on the ballot at the State election in November, and with the united support of the three cities there is little doubt but what the amendment will be adopted.

Inheritance Tax Decision

Two and a half years before he died, Anson P. Stephens, a capitalist of Coronado, conveyed to his wife $50,000. After his death the State Controller sought to impose the inheritance tax on the estate, declaring that the transfer was in contemplation of death. The question was appealed to the courts, and Judge Sloan in San Diego decided against the State. The court held that while Stephens might have contemplated the end, he was hale and hearty at the time of the transfer, and therefore the transfer was not made in contemplation of immediate death.

Pacific Petroleum Sued

Suit has been instituted in the Superior Court of Ventura County by Ventura California Oil Company against the Pacific Petroleum Company to foreclose on contract for sale. The plaintiff seeks to recover $150,000 for the value of cash, bonds and shares of stock in the Pacific Petroleum Company.

URRENCY in the pocket DEPRECIATES. In the bank it EX-PANDS. A person with a $100 check in his pocket likely will go all day without cashing it. With a similar amount of currency there is a tendency to SPEND A LITTLE. The check remains intact. So it is with a bank account. A person likes to KEEP IT INTACT.

Marvelous Results of Prohibition

Former Governor St. John of Kansas, the hero of scores of temperance campaigns, and the man largely responsible for the prohibition amendment that has put Kansas at the head of the temperance map and has contributed so marvelously to its wealth and prosperity, was greeted at the First Methodist church last Saturday evening by a magnificent aumay eventually give to women rights dience. His exposi-tion of the splendid advance of Kansas under prohibition made an unanswerable argument for the wiping out of the saloon and its attendant industries, and removed any doubt of the continued and increased prosperity of California should the voters of the state be sufficiently wise to vote California ary in 1914. Gov. St. John's speech was not oratorical or ing with dry wit and humor that kept en in the championship debate of the his listeners in a cheerful mood. His Southwestern Debating League,

Dr. Guy Wadsworth of Los Angeles, precided the governor, making a brief speech that bristled with telling arguments for California Dry. He knocked the props from under the wine grape industry's claim to being one of value to the state, and showed by overwhelming figures that the state is vastly poorer from the entire liquor industry than it would be without it, as the sums spent in courts for crimes resulting either directly or indirectly from the saloon is immensey larger than the sums paid into the state for saloon licenses.

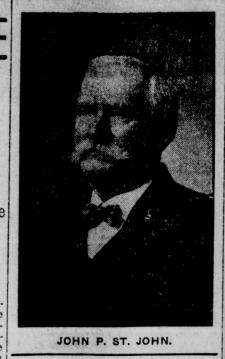

A chorus choir rendered stirring Dry Campaign songs, and Prof. King. colored vocalist from Los Angeles, delighted the audience with his singing. A dramatic incident of the evening was the going out of the electric lights just at the close of his singing of "The Ninety and Nine," and King's ready filling-in of the interim. His strong voice was suddenly heard in the darkness singing one of the cam paign songs, the verses of which clos ed with "We'll take the Stars and Stripes from the saloon." Tremendous applause greeted each rendition of this sentiment and the entire song was given before the lights came on, the great audience joining in the final chorus.

City Superintendent of Schools J. ing in his capacity of president of the Santa Ana Dry Federation, and E. T. of the death of her husband. Langley pronounced the opening prayer. The Anaheim delegation of about forty people was applauded to the echo as the valiant temperance band filed into the seats reserved for them. The Anaheim temperance yell and the Anaheim male quartet were stirring features of the meeting, which altogether was one of the greatest temperance demonstrations ever held in the city, and one which will help roll ip votes for "California Dry."
